Year 7 News

Week commencing – Friday 24th November

Dear Year 7 Students

Another week has passed with positive comments from our visitors from the Gideon society and the community police. Remember to look after your own New Testament and Psalms, it is a book that has given a lot of hope and guidance to many people over the centuries. Try reading it, you never know when it might have words to encourage and help you. Miss Baveystock would also welcome any donated copies to the Religious studies department in RS1.

Our attendance for the year group is the same as last week at 97.3% but 7N have taken the top spot at 99% with both 7R and 7A chasing at over 97%. Stay healthy by washing hands especially before eating and use hand gel to avoid infections. Thinking about our PiXL Edge challenge could you take initiative or help in communication by helping someone in the year group and encourage them to come into school by walking to school together? Who is reminding everyone to be in the Assembly Hall on Friday mornings when the first bell goes, not the second bell? When we say something, are we being positive?

The homework club after school on Tuesday in the LRC is really helping some students get their homework done so that they don't have detentions. If you need help with homework, come and join us in the LRC. Remember it is your responsibility to get a parent or carer to sign your planner once a week.

There will be prize for anyone who can remember all ten tips that Mr Gibson shared in his assembly. Write them down and show Mr Cooper or Mrs Wilkins. We would also love to see someone claim the Math's puzzle prize from two weeks ago.

Next week is the Christmas Market on Thursday and in tutor groups, in PSHE, we are finalising the arrangements to our stalls. We need volunteers to run those stalls for 20 minute slots. We will be setting up from 6:30pm with doors open from 7pm until 9pm. Volunteering can be used in your PiXL Edge – so come and join us for a great evening of fun. Volunteers must have parent or guardian permission given on a signed form. The forms can be collected from reception and the print room. Mrs Wilkins has also put it on Show My Homework. Please remind your parents that this is a real shopping experience of professional stalls in the main hall – it is an event not to be missed!

Have a great weekend and see you all on Monday.

Regards
